“Bobbie Jean was a sweet and compassionate woman who loved her family and will be missed by loved ones and the community. She had excellent gardening and homemaking skills. In the 1960s and 1970s during my and my 2 older brother's childhood, my parents Raymond and Jean McKay would always bring us to the Triplett home whenever we were in Louisville staying with my grandparents Lee Parks and Bessie McKay. During those childhood visits, I remember Bobbie Jean as a wonderfully welcoming hostess to the many family and friends she had at any given time as guests in her home. That continued through to my visits as an adult. She always generously sent me back to my home in Nebraska with her homegrown vegetables and her delicious canned jams and jellies. Bobbie Jean was especially kind and protective of my Grandmother (her Aunt Bessie) and of my father Raymond and of Raymond's 2 wives - his first wife and my mother Jean and his second wife Freny. She and Freny got to spend some time together and enjoyed each other's company when Raymond and Freny moved to Louisville for a few years in the mid 1990s to tend to my grandmother Bessie during her illness and last years of life. Bobbie Jean was a source of strength and hope for me when my brothers Mitchell and Scott McKay died young. Bobbie Jean was always looking out for us and putting others first before herself. We all knew she was a special lady and we all loved her dearly. We also loved and admired the way her son Paul lovingly took care of her after his father's death and the way he welcomed all of us into their home the way she had done before. She used to smile and laugh when I always told her she was my angel on this earth. Now she is an angel in heaven. I will miss her so much. With love, Tracey S. McKay
