“Hi Dad I just was thinking about you. I know it is your birthday and I just feel that things would be easier if you were still around. It has been hard this past year with divorce, the kids, health, and lack of motivation. I helped a lady pay for her cab today at a bank and I wouldn't let her pay me and wished her a happy thanksgiving, however I pulled out and saw the empty cab to my right. The damn cab driver left the elderly lady at the bank and I even paid her more than what the lady owed her. Shows to prove that the world is a cruel and unfair participant of what seems like unlucky events. I just wish you were still around to talk to and confide in like I would do randomly call once a month or so and talk for hours about college, children, love, and my crazy momma. She is still the same ole same and sometimes I catch myself enjoying her wildness and even embracing it as she is still here. But she doesn't ever seem to understand my weirdness and scattered thoughts like you did. I know we would spend hours and hours talking about pets and the strange looks I would get for my lack of fashion as a girl. I have been trying to understand and learn from the world but the more and more I see the need I have to wish I could crawl into a school desk in a big hoodie in the back of a class room and just avoid talking and making eye contact with people. I just wish you could guide me in my journeys on what to do tomorrow and the rest of my loving life. I have been spreading my heart and love with people that come across my path and asking if they need help of any sorts bc I know its important to remain strong, kind, and myself. If you ever look down on me just know I have been trying my best and I do make mistakes in life probably some of the same mistakes you made as a kid and now that your gone I am not sure how to redeem myself so I just keep moving forward. Please watch over Terry and Tyler and if you can watch over Mya and your grandson Tyler. We love you even if they didn't get the chance to ever know you they do know I loved you very much. I will stay strong and pray on this moment and I want to wish you A HAPPY BIRTHDAY from the bottom of my heart. I am so sorry I havent visited your graves it just didnt seem like that is where you belong and my avoidance of that matter should probably be settled. I did get some advice today to finish things that I left unfinished in life. To also embrace my creativity and shine my light where ever I go. I will remember you guys forever and always. For now this is goodbye, atleast until we meet again.

“ I remember when we were having Christmas at Terri's mom's house and me and my dad stayed up all night long on the couch watching tv. When he was there he was there 100% and he would always remind Tyler who his big sister was. I had long talks on the phone about how well my dad was doing with the farm and Tyler having straight A's. Being smart was something my dad was very proud of. I remember the how many I love you he would blow trough the phone and how many he received... I remember.

“ I met Shawn through my cousins on Island 35 when we were all young. He use to hang with my cousins allen mcguire and charlie mcguire. I can remember visiting my aunt and family on island 35 and someone had just drained a pond before you got to my aunts house and all us kids at the time were down there knee deep in mud trying to catch the buffalo fish that was still there and we ended up getting in a mud fight. We all looked terrible but had all of fun. My prayers and thoughts are with the whole family
